Arrange Plans for Primary.

The sub-committee of the Seventh District Democratic Committee, appointed to perfect the arrangements for the congressional primary election, of June 25, and composed of R. H. Anderson, Scott county, chairman; W. B. Crabb, Henry county, and W. D. Davis, Woodford county, met in Lexington Tuesday. They passed a resolution asking for bids for the printing of approximately 35,000 ballots. Chairmen of the eight county committees in the district where notified to report the number of ballots that will be needed in each precinct. Meetings will be held in all the counties of the district within the next few days for the purpose of selecting officers for the primary election.

Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill, of Scott county, and State Senator Calude M. Thomas, of this county, who are the candidates for nomination have each put up $1,500 to defray the expenses of the primary.

Ham Held Without Bond.

Luther Ham, charged with the murder of Hargis King, in Nicholas county, was held by County Judge McNew to the September term of the Nicholas Circuit Court without bond. The defense introduced no evidence. About twenty witnesses testified for the prosecution. All the evidence against Ham is circumstantial.

Delivered Four Ruffians.

(Lexington Herald.)

Senator Thomas makes no bones in charging that Campbell Cantrill "delivered the four ruffians of the Democratic party to the Republicans to defeat Governor Beckham," the regularly nominated candidate for United States Senator, and yet Mr. Cantrill claims he is the real dyed-in-the-wool Democrat who always votes its tickets and supports its nominees. He cannot explain his course in that or in other matters directly affecting his integrity to anybody's satisfaction and has not tried to do so, although his claimed Democracy is of such a strong variety that he cannot speak in a meeting over which a Republican presides and asks Democrats not to vote for Thomas because the President of the Burley Society, Mr. Clarence Lebus, who he says is a Republican, is backing him.

That kind of a plea may fool some Democrats who want to be fooled, but it won't pull the wool over the eyes of those who can reason. Mr. Cantrill must not presume too much on the credulity of the public.

Mr. Thomas' Democracy is unassailable. There should be no hesitancy among Democrats as to whom they will support. The man who has betrayed the party once will do it again when occasion offers.

SENATOR THOMAS

Delivers Splendid Address to Enthusiastic Audience at Lexington—Former Congressman Kimball Supports Bourbon's Candidate—Report of Mr. Thomas' Speech in Full.

Below is printed in full the report, as published in the Lexington Herald, of the address delivered at Lexington Monday, by Senator Claude M. Thomas, Bourbon's popular candidate for Congress:

A crowd that packed the courthouse heard Hon. Claude M. Thomas in an address on his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress yesterday afternoon. His speech was a vigorous, terse, high-pitched presentation of his claims for the support of Democrats of Fayette county, and its reception was most enthusiastic.

Mr. Thomas' references to Mr. Cantrell's alleged breach of faith in making this race, and the effect of his present warfare upon the tobacco grower's organization were direct and unequivocal. The manifest sympathy of the court day crowd proved a strong and representative following in Fayette. His remarks were repeatedly cheered by the large crowd.

Introduced By Mr. Kimball.

Mr. Thomas was introduced by former Congressman W. P. Kimball. Mr. Kimball said:

"It would be manifestly improper for me to become a partisan for either of the gentlemen seeking the nomination for Congress in this district this year, as I am Chairman of the Committee of this county. The greatest service I can render the Democratic party and to the candidate for the nomination is to see that, so far as possible, the primary election held in this county on the 25th of the month shall be fairly and honestly conducted, and its results accurately certified.

"It is conceded that the next House of Representatives in Washington will be Democratic. Let us choose a typical Democrat from this district and send him there with your commission to represent you. Let us pick the best type of Democrat. I believe that if Mr. Thomas is sent to Congress he will make you a worthy representative. I believe that he will be diligent in the business of that great body and attend to your business. Being Chairman of the Committee of this county does not rob me of being a citizen, and as a citizen I am going to cast my vote for Claude M. Thomas of Paris to represent the Ashland District in Congress."

Kimball Denies Statement.

Mr. Kimball said that a statement circulated to the effect that there had been a difference between Mr. Thomas and himself was not true and was being circulated for a wrong purpose. He spoke of Mr. Thomas as a gentleman of splendid attributes, who was worthy of any honor that the Democratic party could bestow.

"He may not be known to some of you because he has not been a pest who is coming around worrying you for your support. Mr. Thomas is a man of affairs, a lawyer, banker and farmer," he said. "Three times he has been a presidential elector for the State at large and is the youngest man I know who has had such an honor. For two terms he represented Bourbon county in the Legislature; then for four years was consul at Marseilles. He is now the Senator for Bourbon, Clark and Montgomery counties.

"He has filled all positions of trust with signal honor and distinction. He will make you a worthy Congressman and be both diligent and efficient. I will have nothing to do with any aspersions in this campaign, but I want my friends to know that I will vote for Mr. Thomas as a man who is worthy of support and confidence."

Mr. Thomas' Speech.

Mr. Thomas said in part: "I thank Mr. Kimball from the bottom of my heart for the generous words he has just spoken.

"I have heretofore announced through the public press my candidacy for nomination for Congress, and I have come here this afternoon to give in your presence some reasons for my announcement, and to express the hope that I may have your sympathy and your support.

"I want to say to you right at the beginning that I have done something this afternoon that I have never done in my life. I never before have written out what I intended to speak. But, I have been maliciously misrepresented, and having some things I wanted to say to you, and wanting to have the written evidence of what I have said, I have written it out in order that there may be no misrepresentation.

Why He Writes Out Speech.

"I perhaps never before had an opponent who would descend to the plane of misrepresentation, and that, perhaps, is why I have never before had occasion to write out what I intended to say.

"I come from Bourbon county, just over an imaginary line from Fayette, and the people of these two counties are so united in kinship and in neighborly association and business interests that they are as one. I have often seen along these main thoroughfares in this city, occasions when it was doubtful whether there were more people from Bourbon county or from Fayette.

"I was born in Bourbon county 47 years ago and have lived there all my life except when I was in school and during the four years to which Mr. Kimball has referred when I was in the Consular Service under the administration of Mr. Cleveland. It may not be out of place to state here that I have never cast aught but a Democratic ballot, and while that is not a character as to fitness for my nomination in this race, it is not out of place to file it as an exhibit in favor of my candidacy.

Some Claims Upon Fayette.

"I have some claims upon the Democracy of Fayette county, for aside from one regrettable mistake, I have never failed to support the Fayette candidates in their seeking after high Congressional honors. As a member of the Legislature years ago, it was my privilege to support your great and glorious Beck in his race for the U. S. Senate.

"I most enthusiastically supported that great man who sleeps over yonder—who so enchanted the world by his eloquence that the world gave back to him in repay its verdict as accepting him as the most eloquent orator of his time, the Hon. W. C. P. Breckinridge.

"In the presence of this Fayette audience this afternoon I want to relate a little historical incident of which I have never seen record. When the Mills tariff bill, I believe it was, was up for discussion before Congress, the Ways and Means Committee of which he was a member, asked Colonel Breckinridge to make the closing address in behalf of the Committee.

Three Great Orations.

"On that occasion he delivered what has ever since been regarded as one of the most farcical tariff orations on record. Within two days he appeared before the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the City of Philadelphia, and there delivered what has always been looked upon as the greatest oration on Calvinism ever delivered by a layman, and within two days from that time, he was in Boston and delivered there over the remains of a distinguished historian the beautiful oration which next to Ingersoll's oration over his dead brother, has been regarded as the greatest and most beautiful funeral oration this country has ever heard.

"You couldn't imagine three subjects more diversified than those, and yet the orations were all delivered within the space of a week. I mention that merely as an incident that it may not be overlooked by him who shall be chosen to write the life of W. C. P. Breckinridge.

Supported Colonel Allen.

"I ardently supported Fayette's distinguished son, Colonel John R. Allen in his race for Congress. We went to our Waterloo on that occasion. I say to you right here, however, that I have made one serious error with reference to my political help to Fayette's distinguished sons. I do not understand how any sensible man could have voted two years ago against the gifted and eloquent Congressman we had at that time. He was and is my friend. He was a friend of the people, a ready and capable candidate, ready to discharge any duty that was to be performed. It was a great wrong, gentlemen, I know it, you know it and nearly everybody in this district knows it.

"Fellow Democrats of Fayette, I have come to you here this afternoon, to say to you that I have had but one serious political ambition, and that is to represent this historic district in the halls of Congress at Washington. It is a pardonable ambition. The Ashland District—what does the name imply?

Clay Gave District Renown.

"The Great Commoner brought it into being and gave the district renown.

"I regret exceedingly that this campaign for a seat in Congress could not have been conducted on a plane permitting a fuller discussion of the questions affecting national affairs. Of course a true and correct interpretation in regard to the tariff question is the one great dividing line that will apply to the two parties in the next Congress.

"In the last National campaign, the Republican party, realizing that they couldn't much longer deceive the people by their broken promises with reference to the tariff legislation, promised that there should be a reduction in the tariff, and gentlemen, that was the question the present President had to meet in every speech he made in his campaign, especially in his speech at Milwaukee in September, 1908, he assured the people that a reduction in the tariff should be made.

Payne-Aldrich Tariff Fraud.

"You remember with what a great blowing of trumpets he called together Congress, and assurances were sent out morning and evening, that the tariff should be reduced, that Congress fulfill the promises he and the Republican party had made. They have given us the Payne-Aldrich bill as a substitute, and all the political economists of the United States have given up the task of trying to find out where in they made any reduction in the tariff in that bill.

"The people recognize their error of judgment with reference to electing a Congress that has pledged to reducing the tariff and violated that pledge, and gave back to the people a tariff with a tax of one hundred per cent and more on the necessities of life, and of less than 21 per cent of those articles which are looked upon as luxuries.

Evidence of People's Stand.

"As an evidence that the people have determined that they shall be a change, this was held not long ago in the city of Pittsburgh an election in the Republican party to elect a successor to Mr. John Dalzell, whom Mr. Kimball knows very well to be a leader on the protection side in the House of Representatives, and he was defeated by an insurgent believing in a low tariff.

"In the city of Rochester, a short time ago, an election was held in a district which a year ago gave a majority of 6,000 for a Republican and a month ago gave a majority of 7,000 for the Democratic nominee. A short time ago there was a vacancy in Congress by reason of the death of a Congressman who at the time of his election was elected by his Republican constituents by a majority of 8,000, and whose successor was elected over the Republican candidate by a majority of 7,000.

Sentiment is Overwhelming.

"The sentiment in favor of the Democratic party is overwhelming. The next Congress of the United States will certainly be Democratic. I want to go there as your representative. I want to go there with your command to vote against, and overthrow Joe Cannon.

Why Not Own Your Own Home?

The Famous Old Bourbon Fair Grounds, at Paris, Ky., will be sold in building lots on Thursday, June 30, 1910, the sale beginning at 2 o'clock. Forty-seven lots will be sold.

Don't You Want One?

This subdivision is not an experiment, already twenty houses have been built there and more are contracted for. Water mains have been laid, electric lights burn there every night; a fire hydrant is already there; Nine tenth street, running directly through this property has been macadamized and many concrete walks have been built. You don't have to develop this property, it is already developed.

The city of Paris is growing toward the South, and this subdivision is in South Paris. Remember it is close to the new railroad yards, where the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company is now putting in improvements costing over $250,000. It is on the Paris and Lexington interurban railroad, and city cars pass each way twice every hour. What more can you ask for? If you don't want the trouble of building, we will sell at the same time and place to new cottages, with modern conveniences, in perfect repair, on Nineteenth street. These will suit the most fastidious. Also two small cottages on the Clintonville pike. Every lot will be sold as advertised. A band of music has been engaged for the occasion and you are cordially invited to be present, whether you bid or not.

Every white person, man or woman, registering with the secretary before the sale of the third lot will be given a number entitling the holder if present at the close of the sale, a chance at two ten dollar gold piece, to be given to the two persons holding the lucky numbers.

Terms of sale are liberal and as follows. The purchaser has privilege of paying all cash; or one-third cash, and balance in one and two years with lien on property; or purchaser can pay $25 cash, and balance in monthly payments of $10 each, until payments amount to $100, when deed is to be made and lien reserved. THE CONGRESSIONAL RACE.

[Editorial From Lexington Herald, June 15, 1910.]

From 1 o'clock till 6—how many hours is that? Five, according to the clocks. Monday we stood on our own feet while the hands of the clock marked these hours, to hear the speeches delivered in the Circuit Court room by William Preston Kimball introducing Claude M. Thomas, and by Mr. Thomas, and on Cheapside by J. Campbell Cantrill and Clarence LeBus. We were anxious to hear all said when the two candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress first addressed the voters of Fayette County.

The news columns of The Herald yesterday gave impartial accounts of the meetings and the speeches by Mr. Thomas, Mr. Cantrill and Mr. LeBus, as near in full as our space permitted. We tried to present all the facts of each meeting together with a stenographic report of the speeches of each candidate, that the voters of the district may have the facts before them to determine how they shall cast their votes. We believe Mr. Cantrill and Mr. Thomas will each concede that the account of his meeting and his speech was fair and full. We want the news columns of The Herald to present the facts in this canvass uncolored and unbiased.

We made no editorial comment yesterday, desiring that the paper should first go to the voters with an impartial account of the meetings. This morning we give our impressions of the meetings and of the speeches, that, with the knowledge that we are earnestly in favor of the nomination of Mr. Thomas, the value of what we say may be judged by each reader of The Herald. We want to be fair both to Mr. Thomas and to Mr. Cantrill, not believing it proper to do either injustice.

We were a little late in getting to the court room and had great difficulty in getting in, scores of voters, who were attracted by the announcement that Mr. Thomas would speak being unable to get into the court room, which was crowded to the doors. We were struck with the texture of the audience there gathered. There were comparatively few men from Lexington, it being made up almost altogether of country men, and the greater proportion, of Fayette county people. While the majority of the audience showed from the beginning that they were enthusiastically for Mr. Thomas, there were evidently a number who had come to hear him, either undetermined how they would vote, or opposed to him.

While we had heard Mr. Thomas in the Court House and in the Senate, it was the first time we had ever heard him deliver a political speech; and we were agreeably surprised. We knew he was a man of ability, a trained lawyer, an honest gentleman. But we were not aware of the fact that he is an orator, at times reaching a height of eloquence rarely surpassed. With a most winning personality, a pleasing voice and wide and accurate learning, if elected to Congress, Claude M. Thomas will rank among the ablest and most eloquent of its members.

His speech was pitched on a high plane and indicated an adequate conception of the responsibilities which must be met and the duties which must be performed by a member of Congress in accordance with the traditions of those who have made the Ashland District famous. His picture of the type of man which should represent this district and of the opportunities which a representative from this district might have to be of service to the people of the country in a Congress which the Democratic party will control, as it will the next Congress, was striking.

His condemnation of the course pursued by Mr. Cantrill was vigorous, aggressive and convincing. The letter which he read from Mr. Cantrill to him, written two years ago, in which Mr. Cantrill promised not to be a candidate against him, but to support him in case he was a candidate, together with his account of the circumstances under which Mr. Cantrill became a candidate this year, seemed unanswerable. After hearing Mr. Cantrill's explanation we see no reason to change our mind.

Briefly, Mr. Cantrill's explanation, which was published in full in yesterday's issue of The Herald, so that every reader of The Herald has it before him, is that he made that promise two years ago; that in the early part of this year he asked Mr. Thomas if he was going to run; that Mr. Thomas said he did not then know; that Mr. Thomas further said—which, however, Mr. Thomas absolutely denies—that, unless he notified Mr. Cantrill within two weeks that he would be a candidate, Mr. Cantrill was at liberty to make the race.

There is a direct question of veracity between Mr. Cantrill and Mr. Thomas as to this verbal conversation. It does not seem reasonable that Mr. Cantrill's account is accurate. Why Mr. Thomas should have made any such statement when he had an ambition to make the race for Congress and had the written pledge of Mr. Cantrill not to make the race against him, when the election was nearly eight months off, we are unable to understand.

There was no intimation in the letter which Mr. Cantrill wrote Mr. Thomas that Mr. Cantrill reserved the right to demand that Mr. Thomas make up his mind whether he would run or not by any fixed time. It was a matter within Mr. Thomas' control absolutely as to whether he would run or not, and as to when he would make his determination.

Mr. Cantrill's interpretation of the whole proceeding seems to us as reasonable, and no more reasonable than would be the contention of a debtor who had given a note, and because the man to whom it was given did not constantly and repeatedly announce that he expected the payment of the note, to claim that he was released from payment.

Listening to both as we did with great care, we are unable to reach any other conclusion than that Mr. Cantrill's action is a distinct violation of a definite pledge. We submit these facts to the readers of The Herald for whose benefit we published the full statement made by both Mr. Cantrill and Mr. Thomas, that there may be no question as to the contention of each.

We did not stay quite to the finish of Mr. Thomas' speech, leaving to hear Mr. Cantrill and listening with careful attention from the time he began until he finished, then staying to hear Mr. LeBus and Mr. Cantrill's rejoinder.

Rarely have we heard a speaker with a more powerful and penetrating voice than has Mr. Cantrill; we were able to hear every word he spoke, though we were in the second story of the Court House and he was speaking against the disturbing noises of Cheapside, with the accompanying disorder of county court day. Vigorous, aggressive, adroit, able, he is one of the best stump speakers we have heard in Kentucky for many a day. Rarely have we heard one who emphasized with greater force those points which he desired to emphasize and evaded with greater skill reference to those subjects he did not desire to discuss or glossed them over as if apparently of no importance.

The audience which heard him numbered between six and eight hundred, possibly more. It was one of the most curious mixtures we have ever seen gathered together. There were many men of Fayette county, but a large proportion of the audience was from Scott county and a larger proportion from the city of Lexington, and a majority of those from Lexington whom we recognized are directly or indirectly interested in the liquor business.

The two main thoughts which ran through Mr. Cantrill's speech were the denunciation of the action of the Burley Tobacco Society in opposing his election, and a plea to the Democratic voters to support him because of his Democracy.

* * * *

We agree thoroughly with Mr. Cantrill that the Burley Tobacco Society ought not to be in politics. It ought never to have been in politics. It ought not to have aided in his nomination over Mr. Kimball. It was a mistake for it to do so. It has no business meddling in politics. It had no business taking part in that primary between Mr. Cantrill and Mr. Kimball. But there is no man in the district who does not know that Mr. Cantrill would never have been nominated for Congress had it not been for the support he received from the members of the Burley Tobacco Association. There is much greater reason for the Burley Tobacco Society to take part in this race than there was in that race. It seems somewhat curious, though it is illustrative of Mr. Cantrill's adroitness, that he should pitch his fight now upon the injustice and impropriety of the association which nominated him two years ago, taking part in a political contest.

* * * *

As Mr. Cantrill denounced the action of the Burley Tobacco Association we could but wonder if he did not feel that he might substitute for the name of the Burley Tobacco Association the liquor interests. We noticed the crowd with care; we noted those who seemed to be in charge of the arrangements; we watched with interest the scowls who circulated through the crowd; we noted that one of them stood constantly back of Mr. LeBus and on several occasions apparently read over his shoulder the papers which Mr. LeBus had and then reported the contents to one of the captains; we came to the conclusion that the open participation of the Burley Tobacco Association in politics is better than the secret participation of the liquor interests when those interests are consolidated, as they seem Bourbon Circuit Court.

TUESDAY.

In Circuit Court Tuesday morning Judge Stout called the criminal docket. Upon the calling of the names composing the petit jury, it was found that most every jurymen summoned had some excuse to offer, and they asked that they be dismissed from service on account of farm work.

Judge Stout turned a deaf ear to their complaints, saying the work of the court must go on as well as that on the farm. A negro woman was fined $5 for laughing in court and a negro man who was summoned as a witness and who failed to answer when his name was called was fined $25.

The case of Frank Scott, a negro, under indictment for malicious shooting, was the first called and upon a submission of the law and facts in the case was given a term of six months in the county jail.

Sam Booth, a farmer residing at Little Rock, this county, was acquitted on the charge of shooting Wess Anderson, a negro, with intent to kill and upon motion of Commonwealth's Attorney, Robert B. Franklin, the indictment against Booth and his son-in-law, Ollie Kissick, charged with assault and battery, were filed away.

The case of Cleveland Stafford and his brother, Watt Stafford, both residents of Carlisle, under indictment for maliciously cutting John McCabe, were called and the former failing to answer his bond, by order of the court, was declared, and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Watt Stafford answered ready and the trial of his case was commenced. The trouble occurred on the evening of November 13, 1909, and took place on the Louisville & Nashville train which left Paris for Maysville.

In the difficulty, as testified to by McCabe, both the Staffords cut and slashed him until he fell unconscious using a dirk knife and the other a razor.

Upon the conclusion of McCabe's testimony in chief court adjourned until Wednesday morning at nine o'clock. Attorneys Talbott & Whitley, of Paris, and Geo. C. Wycoff and William Conley, of Carlisle represented the defendant.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad assisted in the prosecution of the case by its attorney, E. M. Dickson. Col. Robert B. Franklin made the opening statement before the jury for the Commonwealth and Mr. Conley for the defendant.

WEDNESDAY.

Upon the convening of court Wednesday morning the taking of evidence in the case of the Commonwealth against Watt Stafford was resumed, which was concluded at three o'clock in the afternoon, and argument for the defendant was made by Attorney R. C. Talbott who spoke for an hour. Commonwealth's Attorney P. B. Franklin closed a powerful argument shortly after five o'clock in which he declared that James Fox, a flagman in the employ of the L. & N., who pervented the death of Wm. McCabe at the hands of the Stafford brothers by coming to his rescue and felling both men with a blackjack, was entitled to promotion by his employers and awarding of a Carnegie medal for his brave act.

After Col. Franklin's speech Judge Stout instructed the jury and a verdict of guilty was returned. His punishment was fixed at confinement in the State penitentiary for a period of three years. Stafford was taken to jail. Court then adjourned until 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

THURSDAY.

Thursday morning in Circuit Court the hearing of the criminal docket was resumed and a number of cases were disposed of.

Cleveland Stafford, charged with being a principal in the cutting of Wm. McCabe on a Louisville & Nashville train, and who failed to appear in court Monday when his case was called, and which resulted in a bench warrant being issued for him, was brought into court by Detective Stuart, of Lexington, having been taken into custody in that city by the officer Wednesday. The bond of Stafford was fixed at $1,000 in default of which he was remanded to jail to await his trial which was set for next Wednesday morning.

Frank Jones, under indictment on five counts, charging the illegal sale of liquor plead guilty to that charge and was given the minimum fine of $50 each in four of the counts, the other being dismissed. Six indictments against Brice Howard for the same offense were dismissed. Jordan Richardson entered a plea of guilty on an indictment for the same offense and was fined $50, while three other indictments against him were dismissed. Ross Lyman for the same offense was fined $25 each in two cases.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Walter Fields resulted in a verdict by the jury after deliberating half an hour, of a fine of $50 and costs. Fields was charged with the maliciously cutting of Beecher Bell in a Sunday night brawl in the negro suburb of Claysville.

Robert Hughes, a negro, charged with breaking into the Louisville & Nashville depot at Millersburg, was given two years in the penitentiary, while the trial of Robert Ramsey, white, charged with petit larceny resulted in a verdict of six months in the county jail.

Loss Oldham, under indictment for trespassing upon public property was given a fine of $10 and costs.

Court adjourned until this morning at 9 o'clock, when the civil docket will be called. The grand jury adjourned until Saturday morning at the same hour.

The ladies have made a house to house canvass and all who have been seen have entered into the spirit of having a clean, healthy city. The ladies are inviting the co-operation of everybody in the city to assist them in their work, which is to be continued and everybody should lend their assistance.

Ball Players Arrested.

During the game at Richmond Tuesday afternoon between the team of that city and Winchester Fred Tony, pitcher, and Second Baseman Kraher, of the Winchester club, came to blows on the ball ground in a difficulty in which Tony was said to be the aggressor. Warrants for their arrests were sworn out charging them with breach of the peace. Service was made on Kraher, but Tony had left the park and was caught at the train going toward Winchester. Manager Horn will have the big pitcher in Richmond Saturday so the warrant can be served upon him. Umpire Wilkinson assessed a fine of $10 against each of them and suspended them for two days, while the club fined them $15 each. The court costs will probably amount to $20 in each instance.

ORDER OF HEALTH BOARD.

Citizens are Asked to do Their Part Toward Making Paris
Healthful this Summer.

At a meeting of the Board of Health several days ago, relative to starting a spring cleaning up campaign, Dr. F. M. Faries, Health Officer, has issued the following official order:

Paris, Ky., June 10, 1910.
All citizens residing in the city of Paris are hereby notified to clean up and put in proper sanitary condition their back premises, alleys, driveways, etc., removing ashes old cans and other rubbish with the view of making Paris a cleaner, healthier and more attractive city. Weeds should also be cut from streets and alleys, where their rank growth tends to unsanitary conditions.

The unsettled weather of the last few weeks has somewhat delayed the spring cleaning up campaign, but with the return of more favorable weather these matters should be promptly attended to and the Board of Health in compliance with the Mayor's request will take steps to see that this order is enforced.

Free Child's Remedy

What mother is not looking for something that will help her children in the little ills of life, something for the stomach trouble and the bowel trouble? Long ago she probably has become convinced that a child cannot readily swallow a pill or a tablet, and that to "break them in half and crush them" is an annoyance; that usually they work too drastically, and are nauseating and too powerful for the little ones' stomach.

Any mother who will take the trouble of sending her name and address can obtain a free sample bottle of a remedy that thousands of other mothers are using and now paying for. This remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the offer of a free trial bottle is open to any mother who has not yet used it. Having used it and convinced yourself that it is what you want, you can obtain it in the future of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing, the free sample being simply to convince you of its merits. It is the best way to begin on it. Mrs. L. Davis of 187 W. Harrison street, Chicago, and Mrs. Mary Belford, 1710 Coke street, Louisville, Ky., both started with a free sample and now they write that they have never been without a bottle in the house since.

It is undoubtedly a great family remedy, as it is adapted to all ages, being mild and pleasant to take and yet thoroughly effective. It is especially the ideal remedy for children and women and old folks, who need something pure, mild and natural. It has the advantage of being a thorough laxative and yet contains tonic properties. Use it for the most stubborn constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such complaints with a guarantee that it will cure.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. I explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

beyond question to be in this race, in support of a man who before he was elected to Congress was the representative at Frankfort of those interests, and in opposition to a man whose crime in their eyes is that he differs with them in his public course.

It is perfectly proper, for the men directly or indirectly concerned in the liquor business to take what political action they think best for their protection. But if they are to act solidly they will solidify the forces who are not subservient to them. For their own sake they are making a grievous mistake.

We listened to Mr. Cantrill's speech with constant expectation that he would refer to the charges made that he was not for the last Democratic State ticket and was opposed to the election of Governor Beckham, the Democratic nominee for Senator, and in favor of the election of Senator Bradley. He referred casually and briefly to the charge that he was not for the Democratic State ticket, practically dismissing it with the statement that it was not worthy of discussion. But in the two hours he spoke we failed to hear a single reference to the charge that he was opposed to the election of Governor Beckham and favored the election of Governor Bradley as a member of the United States Senate, his colleague in the Upper House of Congress.

Was, or was Mr. Cantrill not, in favor of the election of Governor Beckham? Was, or was he not, in favor of the election of Governor Bradley? He was constantly at Frankfort during that session of the Legislature. He was one of the most influential men not a member of the Legislature, and more influential by far than many members of the Legislature. He was in close touch with the members of the Legislature, particularly with certain elements in the Legislature. Did, or did he not, use the influence he had for the election of the Democratic nominee as Senator, or for the defeat of that nominee and the election of the Republican candidate?

In view of his claim for the support of Democrats because of his Democracy, this is a question of vital moment, one which he has not the right to ignore, one which it is incumbent upon him to answer with frankness and detail. It is incumbent upon him to answer promptly that his answer, if conclusive of his support of the Democratic nominee, may be known to every Democrat in the district, and if not conclusive, that it may also be known and those who make the charge have an opportunity either to prove their charge or to retract and apologize for making an unjust charge.

We were surprised at the conduct of Mr. LeBus, the President of the Burley Tobacco Society, during Mr. Cantrill's speech. We do not think it any more proper that he should have made himself conspicuous during that speech and have attracted the attention of the audience, as he did by standing up on a chair and bowing when reference was made to him, than was the conduct of those who attempted to prevent him from answering Mr. Cantrill after Mr. Cantrill had closed his speech.

Severe as is our condemnation of those who attempted to keep Mr. LeBus from speaking, strong as is our opinion that they made a grave political mistake, injuring their candidate, Mr. Cantrill, instead of Mr. LeBus, we do not censure them as we would had Mr. LeBus not been guilty of what we thought improperly during Mr. Cantrill's speech.

Mr. Cantrill was entitled to a fair hearing without interruption, as every man is entitled to a fair and courteous hearing without interruption from those who are opposed to him. Mr. LeBus, if he desired to speak after Mr. Cantrill finished, was also entitled to a fair and courteous hearing. Those who did not desire to hear him were not compelled to stay. He had the same right to speak on Cheapside as did Mr. Cantrill, no greater and no less right. If he thought it incumbent upon him as President of a Society, the success of which is of more importance to the people of Kentucky at present than any other one association in the State, it was his duty to say what he had to say.

But it was not proper, under any circumstances, for a public speaker to be interrupted by act or word. We protest against it now as we protested in the days when John G. Carlisle was egged at Covington; when an effort was made at Georgetown to prevent Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge from speaking, which effort would have resulted in bloodshed except for his coolness and the devotion of friends of supreme courage in that city, when William Lindsay and Josiah Patterson were insulted in the city of Lexington; when Stephen Sharpe, Butler Southgate and other speakers were insulted and almost assaulted in the gubernatorial contest of 1899, in which Mr. Cantrill first gained any political prominence. We do not wish to see such methods permitted in political campaigns in Kentucky. We think it incumbent upon us to express these views at this time.

We have rarely seen in any political gathering, even in the exciting days of 1899 when Governor Goebel was a candidate for Governor, or in the Bryan-McKinley race of 1896, nor in the Breckinridge-Owens race of 1894, a scene which contained possibilities of more dramatic interest than the scene on Cheapside Monday. Mr. Cantrill, the former advocate of the Burley Tobacco Society, a member of Congress because of his support of that association, to whom was due in large measure the success of the first pool and to whose influence was ascribed by many the spirit of violence which resulted in the night riding, particularly in the counties of Scott, Woodford and Franklin, attacking with bitterness and specious logic the pool in the success of which millions of dollars of the farmers of Central Kentucky is involved. He was standing on an old wagon, surrounded by nearly a thousand men, some interested in his success because of their opposition to the pool, others interested in the defeat of Mr. Thomas because of his opposition to the whisky interests, others bound to Mr. Cantrill by the ties of friendship coming from propinquity and common interests. Immediately at the rear of the wagon stood Clarence LeBus, the President of the Burley Tobacco Society, bitterly assailed and vehemently denounced by the speaker for participating in the Congressional race as well as for his conduct of the tobacco pool, accepting every reference to him with a smile and a bow, attracting the attention of the audience on numerous occasions by standing on a chair, determined, it was known, to answer Mr. Cantrill. There were intimations that Mr. LeBus would make charges against Mr. Cantrill that would be more sensational than anything that has occurred in the campaign, and he was surrounded by kinsmen and friends of Mr. Cantrill, some of whom made a point of always being immediately next to him. The scene contained the possibility of tragedy or of comedy equal to any play on any stage.

Disapproving as we do Mr. LeBus' conduct while Mr. Cantrill was speaking, neither we nor any other man can fail to admire the courage which made him face a hostile audience, the perfect command of his temper which enabled him to meet the jeers and hoots and cat calls of those determined that he should not speak, the determination with which he waited and the skill with which he finally overcame the apparently pre-arranged disorder.

Mr. Cantrill did properly and wisely in urging his friends to listen, to give Mr. LeBus a courteous hearing, though if his plea for their votes is no more effective than his plea for their silence, he will not get very many votes from those who were guilty of that disorder.

nonism. I want to go there directed by you to vote in favor of the restoration of the rights of the people by electing a Democratic Speaker of the House of Representatives.

"And while this tariff question is the great dividing line between the two great parties of this country, there is another question of national importance that I want to call to your attention. It is a question that comes more nearly home to the people, more immediately interests them than even this question of the tariff, and that is, thievery and graft in public office. I am of the opinion that this grafting which is going on all over the country is directly attributable and traceable back to the tariff, because the basis of this protective tariff is that Congress has the right to pass laws that will rob nearly everybody to enrich a few and all over this country there are people who believe that if it is right to rob the people under the tariff law, that it is not morally wrong that they should rob the people in their offices.

Dangerous Situation.

"I only mention that I consider it a most dangerous situation in our public life today. I am glad that at least a few of the scoundrels who have been selling their birthrights are being accorded the punishment which they deserve. In Illinois five officials have been indicted for selling their birthright—voting for the present junior senator for that great Commonwealth, and I am ashamed to say that out of those five, I think four of them were alleged Democrats.

"My opinion is that this is the most terrible vice with which our people have to contend. I believe that the vote-seller is more infamous than any man with whom we come in contact. I believe that any man who will sell the right of the people who elected him to office is a traitor to his country, and ought to be put to death.

"My opponent in this race has contended that there is but one issue between him and me, and that is, he says, our respective positions in regard to the Burley Tobacco Society, I favoring it and he against it. I think that a man who goes to Congress ought to have more than one idea in his head. If he wants to be loyal to his people.

As named of Former Stand.

"Two years ago, I am ashamed to say, I favored Campbell Cantrill for Congress, against as gallant a Democrat as ever breathed the breath of life. I told him at the time why I did it, because I was associated with him along certain lines and I didn't believe I could afford to do anything else.

"God help us for that mistake. In April of that year I received a letter from Campbell Cantrill. Honorable men of Fayette county, I want the ear of every man in this room, Mr. Oscar Carrick arranged this business—I am here to say not one word against Mr. Carrick. I want to explain everything that I know about this transaction.

"Mr. Carrick telephoned me to come over to Georgetown. When I got over to his house, he said, 'I understand you are thinking about running for Congress.' I said that I didn't know whether I should run or not, that it had been spoken of in the papers over in Bourbon, and people over there had talked about it, but that I hadn't made up my mind.

"I urged him not to run. Cam wants to run for Congress. He don't want but one term. He is coming back and run for Governor next time. So don't run against Cam this time and Cam will be for you next time."

"I didn't speak to Mr. Cantrill at the time, because he had given me this same story once before. 'I said to Mr. Carrick, 'Oscar, I wouldn't believe your Cousin Cam, but I believe you. If you say this agreement will be carried out, I believe you will do it.' He said, 'Let me telephone to Campbell to come over here.' I said, 'That is all right, I'll let him come and speak to him, but because of his machinations, because of what he has done, his distinguished old father, whom I loved next to my own father, lies right across the street on his death bed, and I can't even go and ask as to his condition.'

"He sent for Mr. Cantrill. 'He came. He repeated what Oscar had said to me that he would be for me this time if I didn't run that time, that he would turn over the election to me this time. He said, 'I will put that in writing if you want me to.' I said, 'Mr. Cantrill, I don't want that kind of agreement, I never have had that kind of thing. If, when I go back to Bourbon, I tell my people I am not going to run, the Burley people over there will be for you.' I went home and a few days later I got this letter: (Here Mr. Thomas read the letter from Mr. Cantrill.)

"Promised He Wouldn't Run. 'You said 'Hurrah for Cantrill' out there. I want to ask you, if you are an honorable man, if you could say it after hearing that letter written by him to me. I don't understand how any man could vote for Campbell Cantrill after seeing his letter to me.

"He promised me he wouldn't run against me, promised me his undivided support, and as soon as he could he trapped me and before I had announced he became a candidate himself. I submit it to you that a man who would deceive another in a thing like that would deceive you as quickly as he deceived me. In making this race against me he not only violates every moral law, but he violates that one of God's commandments, which says, 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.' And that false testimony which will live to confront his conscience, if he has one, is that statement that he came, asked me if I was going to run, told me that he was for me, and that I said, 'If I do not announce in two weeks' time, you are at liberty to announce.'

Declares Statement Untrue.

"Not a syllable of that statement is true, not a syllable of that conversation as he puts it ever took place. He did come to Frankfort. He says he came here in January. I saw him in a barber's chair under the Capitol Hotel. He said he wanted to see me. I said, 'I am just going over to the Senate, but I will be glad to see you at any time.' I never saw him any more while he was in Frankfort on that occasion.

"So he says that this conversation in which he says I told him I wouldn't run if I had not announced in two weeks took place on the 15th of February. I did have a conversation with him in February and in that conversation he said to me, 'I am aware that several gentlemen want to run for Congress in this District. I want to know whether you are going to run.'

"Never did he say a word about being for me. On the other hand, I knew that he had told one man in January that he was going to run against me, his letter to me contrary notwithstanding. He said there were several men who wanted to run for Congress.

"What Thomas Really Said. 'I said to him, I am down here representing my District in the State Senate. I am doing what I consider right upon every matter that comes up here. I am going to continue to do what I think is right until this session adjourns. In doing that I may do things that the people do not agree with me. I might be unpopular. When this session adjourns, I will come to Lexington or you can come here, and I will let you know.'

"Why would I have told him anything about two weeks' when I had his letter in my pocket? No man who knows me believes that it occurred. I say to you, upon my honor as a man, that not one syllable of the conversation that he says took place, ever did take place. He did not wait for the Legislature to adjourn. He waited a few days and put his announcement before the people. He complains that after he had announced, he wrote me a letter telling me he had announced—a fact of which I was well aware, and to which I didn't reply.

"No Reply to His Letter. 'No, of course not. God help him, I knew he was going to run. If I had replied, I would have had to reply only with such words as honorable men may use with reference to thievery and dishonorable conduct. Down in Oldham county Saturday afternoon, I found that he had his friends out there from Louisville had them hilling the people that I wasn't a good Democrat because I had done what I could to defeat that infamous Ripper bill.

"Let it be known and I trust it may be known to every Democrat in the Seventh District, that I am not the kind of a Democrat who would favor the Ripper bill. The Ripper bill was proposed to legislate a legally-elected Republican out of office and a Democrat into it. The Republican had been elected to his office and was entitled to serve out his term, which the law guaranteed to him.

"I have never had a Democrat outside of the city of Louisville that didn't say I was right about that thieving piece of business.

The County Unit Question.

"In communities favoring the County Unit Bill he has been telling the people that I voted for the Rules by which that bill was killed. I want to say that I tried to defeat those rules. I didn't like the most of those rules. I went into a caucus for the preparation of those rules. I succeeded, in connection with a few other gentlemen, in defeating some of those rules, and in having others modified. I wouldn't vote for them in caucus. I left the room before the vote was taken. But having taken part in that conference, those gentlemen who were associated with me in this opposition, thought we were bound to vote for them in the Senate and every Democrat there did vote for them, and every Republican did, so far as that is concerned. You want to know something about the opinion of a man who asks you to vote for him for the high position of the Federal Congress.

"I learned from my experience down there what I learned years ago. I learned this important thing: That the representative of the people, if he really represents his people, may go into of his party, but unless the measure proposed is a part of his party platform, he can not honorably go into that caucus, because if he does he certainly violated his obligations to his party, and robs himself of the right of determining between right and wrong.

"How easy it is for these corporations to defeat the will of the people. Down in Frankfort last winter there were 26 Democrats and 12 Republicans in the Senate. Twenty in the Senate was a majority, but if they had to have a caucus upon any measure that was intended to rob the people of their rights, they had only to get 14 men in caucus to put it through. If a measure is a part of the party platform, I am ready to go into caucus, but not upon questions which are not a part of the party creed.

"I favored the County Unit Bill and did all I could to bring about its enactment.

"I should do the same thing again. I am told that I am opposed by some of the gentlemen in Lexington who run saloons, but I would not change my position with reference to that principle for the highest office within the gift of the people.

"The gentleman who opposes me has much to say about some Republicans he said, did much in bringing me out, referring to some of the members of the Board of the Burley Tobacco Society. I am going to tell you all that occurred about bringing me out. The first thing was Cantrill's letter he sent me, and the second thing was that I realized that Mr. Cantrill's purpose in life at this time was to stab the burley organization in the back and destroy it.

"Warned of Cantrill's Purpose. 'Not more than two weeks ago I had a telephone message from John Noel, in Frankfort, and he asked me to come down there. I went down, and Mr. Noel told me that the Burley Tobacco Society knew Mr. Cantrill was coming back here, and make the attempt to destroy the organization.'

"A member of that organization had a letter in which Mr. Cantrill told him that it had been a total failure, and that as soon as Congress should adjourn he was coming back to Kentucky to organize unions of the American Society of Equity.

"I heard Mr. Cantrill make a statement the other day in his speech at Owenton in which he said that the Burley Tobacco Company was going to pay the expenses and entrance fees of a certain candidate for Congress in this district. I should say it would be best for him to give the name.

Nobody Pays His Expenses.

"I want to say to you that nobody in the world since I have been 21 years of age ever spent as much as 15 cents to help me along. Nobody has paid my entrance fee and expenses excepting myself. I do not know who the man was he was talking about, but if he meant me it is a falsehood from beginning to end. He had much to say with reference to the Republicans on the Board of the Burley Tobacco Society.

"After my talk with Mr. Noel, I was asked to meet three gentlemen in Lexington. I did not see Mr. LeBus then, I saw Lon Ferguson, A. N. Slaughter and Mr. Witherspoon, all of them Democrats living in this district, and they urged me as a public duty to make this race against Cantrill. Cantrill had betrayed me, had no right to run against me. Talk about Republicans. Why two years ago Cantrill was on bonded knee to Clarence LeBus, Charley Patrick and every Republican of that board. Every man on that board was working for him.

Represented Beer People

"Two years ago Cantrill was down at Frankfort as a representative of the beer people and other people. The Burley Tobacco Society had a bill they wanted to pass at that time. It was the McCord Bill. There was another bill known as the County Unit Bill, but Cantrill used every means to defeat that bill.

"You will remember that every Democratic platform for many years back has had it in a provision for the election of United States Senators directly by the people. We cannot do that because it is against the constitution of the United States. The Democrats decided that the next best thing to do was to let the Democratic party select its own nominees and that every Democratic member of the Legislature would support him. When that was first submitted to the people there was two distinguished gentlemen for the nomination. It did not matter whether you were for Beckham or McCreary.

"Entitled to Every Vote. 'The man who won was entitled to the vote of every Democratic member of that Legislature. Well, you remember how we all stood upon tiptoe upon expectancy of news from the capital, and I remember how it finally came, that Beckham was defeated and Campbell Cantrill had delivered four ruffians of the Democratic party over to the Republican party. I remember furthermore that the County Unit Bill was defeated and it took the same votes to defeat that bill that it did to defeat Beckham for the United States Senate.

"The other day he had a man to come me. This man said he represented Cantrill and had a message to deliver to me. I told him 'If you have a message to deliver to me you will have to deliver it in the presence of a third party.' So I telephoned to Mr. James McClure and asked him to come to my office and the gentleman told me the message.

"It was that somebody was going to say something about Cantrill and that it was within my power to keep it from being told and that I didn't have to go to tell something on me. I said, 'You go tell him to say anything in the world that is true about me; no lies, but tell the truth and there is not anything that he isn't welcome to tell to the people of the Seventh District.'

"He said that he was going to tell that before I was nominated for the State Senate that at a meeting at Mt. Sterling I agreed with three men not to vote for the County Unit Bill. I said 'You go tell him that if he says that he is an infamous liar.' Something that did occur was not at Mt. Sterling, but here at the Phoenix Hotel. I got a telephone message from Campbell Cantrill asking me to come to Lexington.

"He said, 'If you go to the Senate will you agree to vote for the County Unit Bill?' I told Cantrill if I went to the Senate I would vote for the County Unit Bill. Then he said to me 'won't you agree to support a bill that will permit the sale of beer with 1 per cent alcohol in local option towns?' I told him no.

"Cantrill can't tell anything about me that is true that I would be ashamed of. Now gentlemen, as to the Burley Tobacco Society. That organization is an organization of Kentucky farmers. Whether you are in it or out of it it has been of vast benefit to our people here. It would be a disaster if it was destroyed.

"I do not hesitate to say that the endorsement of Campbell Cantrill is an endorsement of the American Tobacco Company. I do not know what made Campbell Cantrill, after being sent to Congress by the Burley Tobacco Society, come back here and undertake to break down this important organization. I do not know, and I would not pretend to say. I know that he did it. I know that an endorsement of him means the destruction of that organization.

PARIS TAKES GAME FROM COLTS

By errorless fielding, timely hitting and the assistance of a quartette of misplays on the part of the Colts, Paris took the game at Lexington Tuesday afternoon by a score of 5 to 2. McCormick was on the mound for the locals and by brilliant twirling, came out with his eighth victory out of as many games since the opening of the season.

While he was touched up for a total of nine safeties, three of which went for extra bases, the Colts could not find his weak spot when there was an opportunity to score. Mulholland started the game for Lexington, but during the six innings in which he officiated the Bourbonites touched him up for seven hits, every one of which assisted in the run getting.

Kaiser was easily the star of the day, getting two hits out of four times at bat, both of them being good for two bases, the second one striking the left field fence about a foot from the top. Lexington got three two baggers, two of them coming at the beginning of innings, but hits were usually not forthcoming. The score:

Lexington.....0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0-2
Paris.....1 1 0 0 3 0 0 0-5

Batteries—Lexington, Mulholland, Kline and Hogan; Paris, McCormick, Holder. Base on balls—McCormick 2; Kline 1. Hits—Paris 8; Lexington 9. Errors—Paris 0; Lexington 4. LAWMAKERS TAKE THE FIRST GAME.

In the first game of the series with Frankfort Wednesday in that city the Bourbonites were defeated by a score of 5 to 1. Cornell was in the box for the Lawmakers and pitched to his old form, allowing Paris only six hits, which were sufficiently scattered to be of no benefit.

On the other hand, Winchell, who was pitching for Paris, was as wild as a March hare, and this failure to locate the plate resulted in five bases on gifts, and he was pounded over the lot for a total of eleven safeties. In the seventh inning Bohannon hit the ball over the left field fence for a home run. The score:

Frankfort.....0 1 3 0 0 1 0 x-5

PARIS WINS 15 INNING GAME.

For fifteen innings the Paris and Frankfort teams battled for supremacy in the game at that city yesterday, Paris winning by a score of 4 to 1. Frankfort scored in the first inning but were never thereafter able to get a man over the plate.

In the ninth inning when a shutout was staring Paris in the face, they tied the score and won out in the fifteenth when they succeeded in getting three runs.

The Bugs defeated the College Devils in an exciting nine inning game at White's Park Thursday afternoon. Jeff Elgin and Ed. Prichard did the twirling for the C. D.'s and Laycock and Frenberg for the Bugs. The Bugs gained a 4-run lead in the first two innings, which the Devils never overcame.

Score: Bugs 9; C. D.'s 5. Batteries, D. C.'s—Elgin, Prichard and Turney and Prichard. Batteries, Bugs—Lacock, Frenberg and Lytle and Peddicord.

Reception For Ball Players.

In appreciation of their treat achievement at Frankfort yesterday afternoon Manager Porter of the Paris Grand will tender the members of the Paris Base Ball Club and the visiting club, if they remain in the city, a box party to the performance tonight. Manager Porter is planning a royal reception for the ball tossers tonight and has many little surprises in store for them. —The wedding of Miss Sarah Fielding Hart and Mr. Richard Lyle Buffington was solemnized at the Methodist church Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock. The church was beautifully decorated in asparagus ferns, pink hydrangea and sweet peas. A bank of handsome plants formed a background for the wedding party. Promptly at 9 o'clock the wedding party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin. First came the little flower girls, carrying gracefully, baskets of pink roses, and dressed in white. They were Misses Mary Allen Hutchcraft, of Paris, and Dorothy Enslow, of Huntington W. Va.

Then came Rev. T. W. Watts, who took his place inside the chancel rail, awaiting the bride party. Next came the ushers down the center aisle, Messrs. F. Pritchard, of Paris, Charlie Pitts, of Huntington, W. Va., George Howard, of Lexington and Harry Harvey, of Huntington, W. Va., Davis Hutchcraft and Mack Grimes. Then followed the bridesmaids Clyde Harvey, of Huntington, Julia Carpenter, Ruth McClintock and Alpha Ball, these took their places on the platform where the ushers were awaiting them next came Misses Sue Wood of Stanford, and Bessie Purnell who took their places inside the chancel rail. The maids were gowned in white lingerie dressed with pink sashes and gloves, each carried a shower bouquet of pink peas.

The group was most beautiful against the background of green plants. Following the maids came the dame of honor, Mrs. Samuel Biggs, of Huntington, W. Va., who looked very handsome in a gown of pink satin, carried pink roses tied with smilax. Then followed the maid of honor, Miss Virginia Hutchcraft, gowned in costume of yellow Japanese crepe carrying yellow roses. The bride came last, her gown of white satin veiled in marquette, was trimmed in a bertha of rarest vase point, which had been used on her mother's wedding gown. Her veil was held in place with pearl pins and sprays of lilies of the valley and never was a wedding veil worn more royally. She was met at the altar by the groom on the arm of his best man, Mr. Canridge Pitts, of Huntington. As the group formed at the altar rail Miss Dickson sang "I Love You Truly." During the ceremony the strains of McDowell's "Wild Roses" were softly played.

The ceremony was most impressive. The ring used was the brides' mother's engagement ring and was carried in a calla lily by Master William Miller. During the prayer the bridal couple and maids knelt and then to the joyous strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march they left the church. Millersburg has never had a more beautiful wedding.

ization, and that is what he is trying to bring about. This is the greatest congressional district in the United States. This is the greatest State in the Union. I want to represent you in the Federal Congress. If you nominate me, I will represent you honestly, and when I come back there would be no stain upon the record I make for you or for myself.

Mr. Marvin Talks.

Following Mr. Thomas, Mr. Charles Marvin delivered an excellent talk upon the pooling movement and the Burley Tobacco Society. Early in his speech he referred to charges against the Society that were being circulated for political effect.

He made a careful investigation of these charges for the purpose of determining for himself if they were true and had established to his entire satisfaction that they were a tissue of falsehood. He said that he was not an official of the Society had no connection with it save that he was a pooler, had never paid out a cent for speaking in behalf of the organization and had paid his own expenses.

Therefore, he came not as a representative, but as a witness. He explained the organization of the Society and showed the democratic representation of the individual grower of all of its acts.
